

Joanna M. Cain, M.D.

---

Joanna M. Cain is currently Professor and Chair of the Obstetrics and Gynecology Department at Oregon Health and Sciences University as well as the Director of the OHSU Center on Women's Health, a National Center of Excellence in Women's Health. She earned her medical degree at Creighton University and completed a residency in Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Washington. She was the first woman to be selected for subspecialty training in women's cancers at Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York. Her present research includes prevention strategies for gynecologic cancers, medical ethical issues in women's health, and curricular development for women's health. She is past chair of the only international ethics committee for women's health, the FIGO Committee for Ethics in Women's Health, and has been the President of the Association of Professors of Gynecology and Obstetrics (APGO) as well as the President of the Council of University Chairs of Obstetrics & Gynecology (CUCOG). She speaks and publishes regionally and internationally in multiple areas of women's health and women's health education, and has published over 100 scholarly articles.